

Rozalia Navon's Family

This photo was taken in 1938, in Palestine. It shows my sister Rozalia Navon, nee Elazar (on the right), her husband Shmuel Navon (his Israeli name was Shmil) and their first child Emanuel. The following is written on the back of the photo: 'On the occasion of Nolito's birthday we send you thousands of greetings. The Navon Family [?] 23.02.1938. Solomon Elazar Family, Sofia? Rozalia left for Israel [Palestine before 1948] in 1932 and she still lives there today - in Holon. She married and now she is called Shoshana Navon. She has two children, Emanuel [born in 1936] and Tslila [born in July 1940]. She worked as a children's teacher in Bulgaria; she graduated from the Pedagogy Institute in Shoumen as a children's teacher. She was very beautiful and a good teacher - children loved her a lot. After the 1950s my sister Rozalia came to visit us a couple of times, but I didn't go to Israel until 1989 although she had invited both our sister Dora and me. We didn't go to Israel, because we knew there was a special attitude towards people going there, especially if they had a responsible state job.
