

Heda Ambrova's Hiding Place In The Mountains

This photo is from the Turiec region, near the village of Motycky, where we were in hiding. It was taken in March 1945, and is of our hiding place.

We were in the mountains until the liberation of Banska Bystrica. Bystrica was liberated on 26th March 1945. We didn't want to leave our hiding place yet. Karol Kúrti said that we still had very hard times in store. 'Don't be in a rush, you'll look back fondly at our stay in Turiec.' That happened, too. We didn't come down until 10th April. We packed everything up and set out in the direction of Bystrica. On the way we met Dr. Geiger from Ruzomberok. He joined us. Because we didn't have any way of getting to Bystrica, we went to our friend the German lady, who'd been our connection the last several months. Her name was Mrs. Müller. There we found out that my boyfriend at the time, Goldstein, had fallen in the uprising. If he hadn't fallen, I would've probably married him.
