How religious was your parents' home? How were you raised?

It was a reformed Jewish home. The entire family followed the kashrut. Every Friday Mother lit the candles and said the prayer. During Sabbath generally working was not allowed, with such exceptions as cooking, turning the lights on and off, etc. Father didn't go to synagogue on Sabbath. The main Jewish holidays were celebrated. On that occasion the whole family went to the synagogue, but the children didn't have to participate in prayers inside the synagogue. Furthermore the children didn't have to fast on Yom Kippur.

What is your mother tongue?

Polish [Although German was spoken in Mrs. Wygodzka's childhood home, she considers Polish to be her mother tongue]

How many other languages do you speak?

German, Hebrew, English

Where were you during the Holocaust?

Soviet occupied territories: Lwow (today: Ukraine), Vilnius (today: Lithuania)

Forced labor camp (1942 – 1945): Oberaltstadt (today Horejsi Stare Mesto, Czech Republic)

What did you do after the Holocaust?

Mrs. Wygodzka married writer Stanislaw Wygodzki, came back to Poland, immigrated to Israel in 1968, because of the anti-Semitic campaign in Poland and returned to Poland in 2000.
